

It's Kinda Like That

Girl, we got something I can't put my finger on.

My buddies ask about it all the time.

They tell me that they're henpecked and they just can't get along.

Then they look at us and we're doin' fine.

I tell 'em you're the one thing that I just can't do without.

When I wake up every morning, there just ain't any doubt.

Chorus 1:

It's kinda like sunshine, it's kinda like rain.

Kinda like finding a harbor, in the middle of a hurricane.

It's kinda like a homerun, off the sweet spot of the bat.

Uh hum uuum...It's kinda like that.

The first time I laid eyes on ya baby, I knew you were for me.

It didn't take too long to prove me right.

When you shake that little thing, it brings me to my knees.

I can hardly wait to get home at night

And wrap you in these tired arms, and just whisk you away

And let our bodies do the talking for the words I just can't say.

Chorus 2:

It's kinda like thunder; it's kinda like a first kiss.

It's kinda like all I ever wanted, with you at the top of the list.

It's kinda like a good thing, you just know it's gonna last.

Uh hum uuum...It's kinda like that.

Songwriter's Notes

I wrote this in 2008. In retrospect, I should have saved it for our 10th wedding anniversary. Now I have more work to do!

At the time, Debi and I both had a lot of friends going through, or coming out of a divorce, and I found myself getting a lot of the same questions from the newly single. How do you guys make it work? From these conversations, the song practically wrote itself.

I imagined the excitement and rush you get when you first fall in love, and tried to think of other things that might give us that tingle - those once in a lifetime moments like hitting a home run, feeling the warm sun, finding a base of stability in an unstable world. That's what I wanted to tell them but it came out, "You know, it's kinda like that."
